

HE SAW A GHOST.

ON APPARITION WHICH EATED CONSTERNATION.The Play of a Woman's Imagination—Other from Macoon—A Negro Who Proposes to Return a Child to Its Mother—Personal and General Notes, Etc.December 30.—[Special.]—Two ladies, Miss Sarah Rockwell, her sister, and a young man, the latter the former of the store of George R. Barnwell, were sitting in the latter's room, chatting away, when the latter suddenly rose and went to a certain position in the room.She threw up her arms, and with a look of intense excitement, she said:
"I see that dead man again!"
The other two ladies, who were sitting near her, when she screamed again, never moved. Don't you see that ghost just out of sight?"The ghost was to be seen.
It is standing at the window in the room, and is looking at the ladies.
The ladies were very excited, and with difficulty they were able to get up and look at the ghost. For several days she declared that she saw the ghost of a person in a room across the street.She became more convinced, and sent for the celebrated Macoon medium, Mrs.
Barnes.The medium was told of the circumstances, and went to a certain position in the room and looked out of the window across the street toward the window, and she said she saw the ghost.She made a few mysterious gestures, and suddenly opening her eyes, she said:
"Yes, I see it; a ghost, as I live; it is a man, with his shirt and a towel around his neck. I see by his side a woman and a child."The ladies became excited, and rushed down to the store of Mr. Barker and created a commotion among the clerks by calling them the ghost.The ladies were called on this afternoon. Miss Rockwell said: "I saw the apparition of a man, and I saw the death of the man."

THE GREAT EARTHQUAKE.

Fresh Horrors With Every New Detail—Other Foreign News.MADRID, December 30.—Every fresh detail from the districts in which the earthquake shook was severe adds new horror to the catastrophe. At Nergo, a town of 5,000 people, in the province of Malaga, and 27 miles east of the city of the same name, the earthquake was followed by a hurricane. This shook the destruction of many houses which had already been brought to the brink of ruin by the previous shock. The inhabitants fled in terror from their houses and camped outside of the town. Much suffering has been caused by the scarcity of provisions. The alarm in Malaga, however, is now subsiding, and alms, it is believed, will soon resume their ordinary course.At Granada, a day of the storm was sung and prayers were offered for the cessation of the earthquake. At Frigo, in the province of Cordova, shocks came while the theater was crowded with people. A terrible panic followed. Many persons jumped from the galleries and from the windows upon the crowd below. Two were killed outright, and forty were seriously injured.At Malaga, two lofty chimneys forming part of the gas works, fell to the earth. The patients in the hospital were so terrified that they forgot for the time being their maladies, and fled to the open air. The convicts in the prison refused to enter their cells and remained all night in the courtyard. At Alcala, Santa Cruz were completely destroyed. The soldiers were busy clearing up the ruins in search of corpses, which are found in large numbers. Many of them are horribly disfigured.The number of persons killed is still unknown. There is no doubt, however, that the report which fixed the number at 900 is an exaggeration. There is much distress among the survivors and the people are asking for relief. At Alcala, 200 persons received injuries more or less serious. From the ruined houses 100 bodies have so far been recovered.
The barracks at Loja, in the province of Granada, were ruined. At Zafarrag, a town not far from Loja, fifty persons perished.An Irish Demonstration.

ALMOST A CORPSE.

A YOUNG MAN WHO MONKEYED WITH MORPHINE.A Young Man Takes Seven Papers of Morphine and Starts His Sleep of Death—How Mr. Ike Barr Was Found—Almost Recovered at Daybreak, Etc.At three o'clock this morning news reached THE CONSTITUTION that a young man, Mr. Ike Barr, was lying in a dying condition from an overdose of morphine, at the boarding house of Mrs. Shudrick, on Forsyth, between Alabama and Hunter streets. The lateness of the hour prevented a full investigation of the circumstances. But what could the hastily obtained information be?At about one o'clock in a slightly intoxicated condition, he awoke his two roommates with the remark:
"Boys I have taken a dose of morphine." His roommates only took it as a joke, and said nothing."I have taken two doses," "Oh, shut up and go to bed," replied one of the disturbed sleepers."I have taken three doses, yes four; more than that, I have taken six doses of morphine and I am going to die," said Barr as he disheveled and threw himself on his bed.He soon began to breathe very heavily, so much so as to frighten Mr. Tilly who slept near him.
Mr. Tilly awoke his bedfellow, and both proceeded to the bedside of Barr, whose breathing had become extremely deep and whose countenance appeared to have assumed an unnatural expression. He was taken by force from his bed in a semi-unconscious condition, and the only reply which could be gotten from him was an incoherent muttering in which he repeated the words: "Morphine" and "morning" in such a disconnected way as to prevent an understanding of what he was saying.Doctors Boring and Roach were summoned and pronounced him in an extremely dangerous condition. His arms had become stiff, his pulse slow, and his eyes were thrown back. He was unable to stand, and was carried around in the arms of strong men who made every effort to resuscitate him. His limbs were vigorously rubbed and his whole body kept in motion. As we go to press with the second edition at five o'clock this morning he gives evidence of recovery, and is being walked up and down the sidewalk in front of his house. He has returned to consciousness, and the doctors announce that he will soon be all right.Mr. Barr is a cotton weaver for Maddox, Rucker & Co., and has been with them several years. His mother lives in Columbus, from which place he came to Atlanta several years ago. He is approximately twenty-two years of age and a handsome specimen of manhood.He says that he did not take the morphine with deliberate intent, but that he has been troubled with headache for some time, and took it to relieve the pain. Seven papers of the opiate found in every part of his room, and but for the timely interference of his room-mates he would have been a dead man this morning.ROLLER SKATING.
